GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF SUBJECT IN RELATION TO ORAL HISTORY:

In the beginning of the tape, Patricia Rogge read from her mother's diary describing her trip in 1899 to Dawson with her husband and young son, Most of the tape focusses on the life in Fairbanks that Rogge experienced in the 1920s as one of eleven children of Ed and Agnes Hering. Subjects covered included recollections of historical events such as the President Harding visit and the dedication of the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines as well as daily routines associated with work, school, recreation, and special holidays. Also on tape is her account of life as a University of Alaska student in the 1030s, her marriage to Gene Rogge, and the effect of World War II on Fairbanks - a time she describes as very "dreary" because of the enforced blackouts, censureship in letters, shortages, etc.
