

Fred Ewan

6/8/99

Fred was interviewed by Ruth Ann Warden and Bill Schneider at his home in Gulkana.

Ruth Ann arranged the interview and throughout he references her grandfather, Harry Johns. Fred's interview is informative on many topics such as surviving the road, life out in remote camp, Indian marriage custom, and the beginnings of wage employment. Throughout there is a message that the old days were good because people had their land and their way of life - no one told them where to go, what to do. He also thinks that the lessons of the woods are not known by young people today and that this is too bad; they couldn't make it in the woods if they had to.
